1. Scope of application

- 1.1 These General Conditions of Purchase shall be applied, unless otherwise explicitly agreed in writing between the contracting parties.
- 1.2 The following supply conditions shall also be applied, where expedient, to services.
- 1.3 These general conditions of purchase shall apply to all orders sent in writing or electronically by a company belonging to the Autotest Südtirol G.m.b.H. (hereinafter known as "Autotest") and shall be considered as being an integral part of the agreement.
- 1.4 Our general conditions of purchase shall also apply to any future commercial activities that might be executed with the supplier.

2. Implementation of the contractual conditions – written form

- 2.1. Purchasing orders are only valid if in written form. An agreement shall be considered to have been entered into, when the supplier sends his written confirmation of the order and if the order is not provably rejected, within ten days, by Autotest.
- 2.2 Any amendments and additions to the agreement require Autotest's written confirmation for the purposes of their validity. The supplier's purchase conditions shall only be binding upon Autotest if acknowledged separately by Autotest.
- 2.3 Should any import and/or export licences, currency authorisations or similar approval be required for the agreement to be performed, the party responsible for the purchase shall undertake to adopt all the necessary measures possible to obtain the required licences or authorisations in good time. Communications must be drawn up in writing to be in compliance with commercial customs.
- 2.4 The delivery orders envisaged by the supply programme, on the basis of supply framework/programme agreements, shall be considered valid when received by the supplier. If the supplier is unable to satisfy an order with reference to the quantity or delivery terms, he shall undertake to inform Autotest in writing, within 24 hours from having received the order, indicating the earliest delivery terms possible.
- 2.5 The orders, supply requests, entering into agreements, as well as the relative amendments and additions must be drawn up in writing. Within the scope of commercial practices, the written form is satisfied by data transfer, e-mail or fax.

3. Contractual amendments

- 3.1 Within the scope of contractual acceptability for the supplier, Autotest shall be entitled to request, at any time whatsoever, any amendments to the volume and performance of the object of the supply. Furthermore, the effects must be expediently regulated, in particular, with reference to the higher or lower costs incurred, as well as the terms of supply. The supplier shall undertake to immediately justify the effects of said amendment to the prices or terms of delivery, through the most expedient documentation. The supplier shall document the price and terms of delivery effects of said amendments.

3.2 The supplier shall not be entitled to change the object of the supply without Autotest's prior, written authorisation to do so; in particular, he shall not be entitled to exchange materials, change the place of manufacture, the machinery or the specifications of the object of the supply.

3.3 The supplier shall be entitled to change the object of the supply, if it is required, to satisfy technical requirements. The effects on the prices and terms of supply shall be described, in writing, in his proposal. Said amendment, proposed by the supplier, shall only become effective when Autotest has explicitly approved the same, in writing, even with reference to the prices and terms of supply.

3.4 The supplier shall undertake the liability of understanding and abiding by the technical documentation (drawings, CAD data and specifications) and the technical specifications. In the case of any doubts whatsoever, the supplier shall undertake to refer to the competent Autotest personnel. It is expected that the supplier shall find an explanation for all outstanding issues, already during the products' design phase. All the amendments made to the technical specifications shall require Autotest's prior, written authorisation. No verbal agreements shall be admitted. In the case of an amendment made without prior authorisation, the supplier shall undertake to reimburse Autotest for the resulting damages.

4. Supplies – Terms of delivery

4.1 The quantities and delivery terms shall only and exclusively be specified in the orders or supply requests. The supplier shall undertake to guarantee the volumes requested, in order to be able to comply with the order quantities or supply requests. Within the scope of the supply requests, Autotest shall grant the supplier two weeks time to produce finished parts and a further two to supply the raw materials. The terms of supply which go beyond these limits, shall be considered as being non-binding forecast values. It being understood that further production clearances shall be made in writing and the period shall be expediently extended. Autotest shall not be obliged to purchase any finished parts that exceed the terms established for the production clearances, as well as for the material that exceeds the clearance terms. Autotest shall be entitled to adjust its requirements to meet the terms of delivery and quantities, which were not yet binding considering the above mentioned time lapse.

4.2 The terms and due dates agreed shall be binding and essential for the Supply Agreement's performance. The arrival of the goods, care off the goods' reception office, is decisive for compliance with the terms of delivery or the delivery due date, which shall be indicated in the supply order/request.

4.3 Autotest shall not undertake to accept any goods which are delivered prior to the delivery terms. The risks of the goods' deterioration, delivered prior to the delivery terms, shall be undertaken by the supplier. An early supply shall not lead to any advance due date. Autotest shall be entitled to return excess supplies, at the supplier's expense; the supplier shall undertake to sustain all the packaging, working, sorting and transport costs. Autotest shall be entitled to postpone the supply requests or provide for a provisional suspension of the supplies, without the supplier being authorised to amend the price of the goods.

4.4 If the supplier foresees any difficulties with reference to production, the supply of raw materials, compliance with the terms of delivery or similar conditions, which might hinder the timely supply or prejudice the quality of the goods agreed, the Autotest Purchase Office must be contacted immediately.

4.5 It shall not be possible to make any partial supplies and only complete ones shall be carried out, unless Autotest does explicitly approve of said partial supply. In the case in which partial supplies are agreed, the supplier shall list the remaining quantities of the parts that have still to be supplied.

4.6 In the case of any amendments made to the production series and the passage – which takes place further to said amendments, new materials and components – the supplier shall undertake to inform Autotest about any surpluses, by and no later than one week from said passage being made.

4.7 The supplier shall undertake to guarantee, even during the company's holidays, to make deliveries to Autotest or for Autotest.

4.8 In no case and for no reason whatsoever shall the supplier be entitled to suspend supplies. Even in the case of any disputes arising with reference to the quality, quantity, prices and payment, the supplier shall not be entitled to stop the supplies.

4.9 The supplier shall undertake to introduce and maintain an efficient storage and transfer system concerning all the raw materials, components, assembled items, unfinished and finished goods, pursuant to the FIFO (first in, first out) principle.

4.10 The supplier shall undertake to prepare an emergency plan to guarantee the supply's feasibility and submit it to Autotest. The supplier shall undertake to guarantee to be available twenty-four/seven. Besides the quantity commissioned for the subsequent orders, the supplier shall undertake to maintain a FIFO security reserve of O.K. goods, always available, to cover the orders, or at least, to cover the next one. Autotest shall be entitled to check the security reserves, after providing a notice period of two hours, during the supplier's normal working hours. In the case of insufficient FIFO security reserves, the Head of Autotest's material planner shall be immediately provided with a written report on the situation and the period foreseen to supplement the FIFO security reserves. The security reserve shall be immediately supplemented, without any further supervision by Autotest and, in any case, by and no later than twelve hours from when the reserves have been consumed.

4.11 The sender, the delivery address, the item's name, the Autotest article number, the Autotest order number and the quantity supplied must be indicated on every delivery note. If the indicated terms are not complied with, the goods cannot be calculated by Autotest nor shall it be possible to pay off the corresponding invoice.

4.12 The physical prototypes must be prepared separately and must always be delivered with a separate delivery note. The latter shall clearly indicate the wording "Prototype".

The prototypes, together with the VDA-EMPB (the initial sampling test report) and the relative documentation, must be delivered to the place indicated in the order. If said initial sampling test report is sent beforehand to the order address, it must be explicitly indicated on the supply documents.

4.13 The labels for the goods must be applied in compliance with the working instructions supplied. In the case of external producers, after work has been completed, a new label relative to the actual state of work must be stuck to the label that is already present.

5. Delays in delivery

5.1 The supplier shall undertake to compensate Autotest for any damages incurred consequent to delays in delivery.

5.2 If the supplier is late in providing the supplies, Autotest shall be entitled to claim performance by establishing further appropriate terms (in general, the subsequent period is equivalent to ten working days), declare his wish to terminate the agreement or claim arrears equivalent to 2% of the order volume for each day's delay, up to a maximum of 10% of the entire order volume.

5.3 If the subsequent terms envisaged in Article 5.2 are not complied with, due to blame attributable to the supplier, Autotest shall be entitled to terminate the agreement in writing, with reference to the goods that have not yet been supplied. The same may be done in relation to the goods that have already, effectively, been delivered, which cannot be used correctly without the not yet delivered goods. In this case, Autotest shall be entitled to the return of the payments made for the goods that have not been delivered or which cannot be used. Furthermore, should the delay in delivery be attributable to the supplier's gross negligence, Autotest shall be entitled to compensation of the justified costs that it had to sustain until termination of the agreement and which can no longer be recovered. The goods already supplied, and which cannot be used, shall be returned to the supplier by Autotest.

6. Shipment - Packaging – Risks during transport – Retention of title – Application of Incoterms

6.3 The supplier shall undertake to submit the so-called origin certificate for the object of the supply (the supplier's declaration of conformity), or the supplier shall undertake to send Autotest the necessary declaration concerning both the commercial origin as well as the good preferential origin, in due time and, therefore, notify them immediately, without any eventual amendment of the origin certificate having to be requested. At the same time, the supplier shall undertake to check the truth of the information relative to the goods' origin, by means of a statement that must be certified as true by the Customs Office. If the supplier does not fulfil said obligation, he shall undertake to answer for all the damages derived from the same.

6.4 If the delayed delivery of the aforementioned documents leads to any stoppages, all the corresponded costs and expenses incurred shall be debited to the supplier.

6.5 The existing and/or attached identification tags which refer to the characteristics, composition, conservation, name, description, shipping documents, instructions for use and assembly, must be, with reference to the contents, filled in correctly, impeccable, complete and comprehensible.

6.6 Should the supplier not abide by the type of packaging prescribed and authorised, Autotest shall be entitled to charge him the additional costs incurred. The passage from standard packaging to alternative packaging must be approved by Autotest beforehand. Before using another type of packaging, the type and relative capacity must be agreed upon. The supplier shall undertake to inspect and control the packaging and identification processes, in the amount in which the latter are requested, in order to guarantee compliance with the requirements foreseen.

6.7 The transfer of title and perils of the goods shall take place at the time and place established in the Supply Agreement.

8.2 Autotest's "Quality Control Agreement" (Qualitätssicherungsvereinbarung) shall be an integral part of the agreement and shall be strictly complied with by the supplier.

8.3 Should the competent authorities request to check specific requirements and see the production process of Autotest and its inspection certificates, the supplier shall undertake to grant the same right to Autotest in its company and provide all the support required.

8.4 With reference to the application of the "Quality Control Agreement" rules existing between Autotest and the supplier, the inspection of the goods on entry by Autotest shall be limited to what has been set forth below: Autotest shall only undertake, with reference to inspecting the goods on entry, to acknowledge and check the quantities, transport damages and any other, clear damage. Please refer to the Autotest regulations with reference to the acceptance of the goods and their inspection on entry.

8.5 Payment of the goods shall not be equivalent to any approval of faulty goods; furthermore, the inspections carried out by Autotest or its clients shall not exonerate the supplier from any liability for faulty goods.

8.6 Autotest shall undertake to immediately notify, in writing, any defects found, just as soon as the same are ascertained, on the basis of the normal course of commercial activities, as foreseen in the provisions. To this end, the supplier shall undertake to renounce any objections concerning the delayed communication of any faults found.

8.7 Autotest shall be entitled, after providing notice, to enter the supplier's company, during working hours, to check the premises, goods, materials, production of the goods and the equipment, machinery and devices used for the supply.

9.1 The supplier shall warrant that the goods supplied are competitive in relation to price, technology, quality and design.

9.2 In the case in which Autotest should offer equivalent goods, at competitive conditions, the purchaser shall inform the supplier of this and shall establish an expedient due date, in writing, to re-establish the competitiveness. The supplier shall check and fully adopt all the measures required to re-establish competitiveness. He shall inform Autotest about these measures and the offer's review. Said review by the supplier shall go towards re-establishing the competitiveness of the goods, in case of point, within the most expedient due date established by Autotest.

9.3 Autotest and the supplier have agreed that the obligation of maintaining competitiveness is a fundamental commitment for the Supply Agreement.

9.4 If the supplier does not submit a competitive offer, within the due date foreseen, Autotest shall be entitled to assert its termination right, in compliance with what has been set forth in Article 15 of the agreement, here below.

10. Out of series production – Spare parts

10.1 The supplier shall undertake to inform Autotest by and no later than a week after the official end of production (EOP), concerning all the materials and components surpluses. Autotest shall not accept any notification made late and this delay shall be charged to the supplier.

10.3 The supplier shall undertake to agree upon the same contractual regulations with its suppliers and have them complied with.

11. Warranty

11.1 The supplier hereby warrants that all the goods are in compliance with the specifications, designs and descriptions, that they are free from faults of any kind, that they are working and free from any defects. The supplier, who has been informed by Autotest about the use foreseen for the goods, shall undertake to warrant that the goods are suitable for the aforementioned purposes and have been properly designed.

11.2 If the goods are defected, Autotest is entitled to either:

a) before beginning production (working or assembly), Autotest shall be entitled to give the supplier the possibility of sorting the goods and eliminating the faults or providing a replacement supply, unless Autotest does not retain that the degree of faultiness is acceptable. In the case in which the supplier is unable to provide for said request or cannot immediately satisfy the request to eliminate the faults, Autotest shall be entitled to terminate the agreement without establishing a further due date and/or return the goods at suppliers risk to the supplier. In the case in which the terms cannot be extended, Autotest shall be entitled to directly take action to eliminate the faults, further to reaching an agreement with the supplier or shall be entitled to appoint a third party to do so. Therefore, the costs incurred by the latter solution shall be charged to the supplier. If the same, faulty goods should be repeatedly supplied, Autotest shall be entitled – after sending a written notice – to cancel the remaining part of the supply that has still to be delivered, in case faults in the replacement supply reoccur.

b) in the case in which the fault is only discovered after the beginning of production, Autotest shall be entitled to request the restoration or reimbursement of all the costs and expenses required by the restoration such as the costs incurred for transport, processing, materials, assembly and stripping down.

c) in the case in which the supplier breaches any obligations, which go beyond the supply of faulty goods, Autotest shall be entitled to request the reimbursement of the damages incurred, consequent to said defects. The damages generated by the faults shall correspond to the damages that Autotest has sustained directly because of the faulty goods, due to other legal causes, besides the goods supplied.

11.3 Autotest shall be entitled to enter into agreements with the final client concerning the liquidation of damages and forfeiting the costs incurred to exchange of goods or compensation of the damages. The supplier shall undertake to compensate the damages claimed by Autotest and the relative costs, as long as they can be attributed to the faulty supply. The agreements entered into between the final clients and Autotest shall be valid for the analysis incurred and to establish the quota incurred by the acknowledgement and definition of the costs. To reduce the costs incurred by re-delivering the parts and analysis of all the faulty parts, on a global scale, and in case of liability for the faults inherent in the part, sampling of the faulty parts shall be carried out. The quantities that have been found to be effectively faulty by Autotest or the vehicles' producer, shall be considered as being valid, in place of those that have been calculated after sampling. The supplier shall undertake to sustain the expense incurred that has been charged to Autotest and caused by the supplier.

11.4 In the case in which the goods have already been assembled or supplied by Autotest to its client and said faulty goods have been submitted to the final purchaser without the client having carried out any inspections, the supplier shall undertake to acknowledge that an Autotest's client or a third party appointed by Autotest discovered the fault, even if the faulty goods have not been exhibited to the supplier.

11.5 The warranty period shall be (1) thirty-six months for the vehicles destined to all markets (except for the North American one) and (2) forty-eight months for vehicles destined for the North American market (the USA, Canada and Mexico), every time, after the vehicle's first registration, on which the goods or part of the same have been assembled. However, in the case in which Autotest should grant its client a longer warranty period, or a shorter one, the warranty period as agreed shall be valid, but cannot in any case exceed sixty months from the vehicle's production date.

11.6 Autotest's rights, as agreed in this article, shall be applied in addition to all other legal rights or those which have been contractually foreseen.

12. Product liability - Exoneration – Civil Liability Insurance

12.1 The fact that the supplier shall be held liable for any damage to the products being understood, he shall undertake, with reference thereto, to holding Autotest harmless from any demands for compensation of damages from third parties, on first request, if the reason for this falls into the scope of his competences and relative organisational area and if he can be held directly liable in relations with third parties.

12.2 Within the scope of being liable for damages, pursuant to the first sentence, the supplier shall undertake to reimburse any expenses which have been incurred by or are in relation to recall action authorised by Autotest or the final client.

12.3 The supplier shall also be held liable for his representatives or sub-suppliers, in the degree in which he shall answer directly for their conduct.

12.4 The supplier shall undertake to underwrite insurance cover, in particular, manufacturer's civil liability, obligatory, corporate civil liability insurance and insurance against product recall, in relation to the obligations derived from the Supply Agreement. The supplier shall undertake to submit Autotest the corresponding insurance certification by and no later than seven days from having executed the agreement.

13. Industrial Property Rights

13.1 The supplier shall be held liable for the rights resulting from the contractual use of the goods, breach of industrial property rights and non-presentation of the declaration concerning industrial property rights.

13.2 The supplier shall exonerate Autotest and all its purchasers from all claims derived from breach of the industrial property rights and non-presentation of the declaration concerning industrial property rights. This shall include all the damages, claims and rights derived from the effective or declared breach of the industrial property rights or the non-presentation declaration concerning industrial property rights, through the sale, marketing, production, disposal, offer for sale or the use of the goods supplied, including the costs incurred in asserting a right.

13.3 This shall not apply, in the case in which the supplier has produced the goods in compliance with the drawings and models sent by Autotest, or on the basis of other descriptions or indications equivalent to those provided by Autotest and was not aware or could not have known that industrial property rights would have been breached, in relation to the products he developed.

13.4 The contractual partners shall undertake to immediately provide information in relation to any risk of breach or presumed case of breach coming to their knowledge and shall be entitled to raise objections, in mutual agreement, against the corresponding claims.

13.5 The supplier shall immediately inform Autotest about the use of its industrial property rights and the declaration of industrial property rights on the goods, his own, or under license, those which have been published and those which have not.

13.6 Unless it has been specified otherwise in the Supply Agreement, all the designs, models and specifications, as well as all the information developed by the supplier and sent to Autotest, shall become Autotest's exclusive property, which it shall be entitled to use and be valid throughout the world, exclusive and assignable. The cost incurred by assignment of the rights and respectively the right to use shall be foreseen in the supply price. Therefore, Autotest shall freely provide the entire documentation and all the information, respectively with reference to the exclusive right use, on transfer of title.

13.7 Autotest shall reserve copyright in the degree in which the purchaser provides the supplier with re-productions, drawings, calculations, data, performance descriptions, specifications and other documents; third parties shall not be entitled to access said information without Autotest explicit, written authorisation to do so. The information must only and exclusively be used for mass production and/or working of Autotest's orders. At the end of the Supply Agreement, the information must be returned, without any reserves, to Autotest. The information must be kept concealed from third parties.

13.8 If the supplier's industrial property rights should be requested for the use of goods by Autotest and/or its purchasers, the supplier shall undertake to grant Autotest and its purchasers the licence, valid throughout the world, irrevocable and free of charge, for complete use of the goods, sales, marketing, disposals, offers for sale, possessions, repairs, productions or re-productions of goods.

14. Ordinary Termination

14.1 Autotest shall be entitled to terminate the Supply Agreements or parts of the same, at any time whatsoever and without having to provide any reasons whatsoever, by means of a letter sent by recorded delivery to the supplier with term of notice of three months. In the case of termination, Autotest shall undertake to reimburse the supplier the following amounts:

- a) the price agreed for the goods that have not yet been paid and have already been supplied, exempt from faults;
- b) the price agreed for all the finished goods that have been produced in compliance with the Supply Agreement, and which have not yet been supplied to the purchaser;
- c) the products' direct costs and the unfinished raw materials, which the supplier has sustained to prepare the goods, in compliance with the Supply Agreement, as long as said costs are reasonable, however, net of the value of the products and the unfinished raw materials, which the supplier had subsequently used or sold, further to the purchaser's authorisation to do so.

In the case in which a situation arises, such as the one related in Article 14.1 a), b) or c), the supply of the goods and raw materials must be undertaken upon Autotest's request.

14.2 Autotest shall not undertake, in any case whatsoever, to pay for the finished goods, products or unfinished raw materials, which exceed the quantities ordered or Autotest's obligation to collect them, in compliance with Article 4.1 of these General Conditions of Purchase. Autotest shall not even have to reimburse those goods or materials that fall into the supplier customary stock and which can be easily sold.

14.3 This right of termination shall apply, in addition, to all Autotest's other rights to terminate a Supply Agreement early.

14.4 The supplier shall be authorised to terminate any supply agreements or part of the same, at any time whatsoever, and without providing any justification, merely by sending a written declaration sent by recorded delivery to Autotest, with a twelve month term of notice.

In the case of non-compliance with the aforementioned termination terms, the supplier shall undertake all the transport costs incurred (for tools, documentation, etc.).

14.5 In the case of termination by the supplier of the framework, supply and/or project agreements, the supplier shall undertake to promptly compensate Autotest the development costs, project acceptance and the expenses sustained due to the project's termination and movement. That which has been set forth foregoing hereto shall also apply in the case of Autotest's termination, due to objective reasons (pursuant to Article 15 of these general purchase conditions).

15. Extraordinary Termination

15.1 Autotest shall be entitled to completely or partially terminate the Supply Agreement, for extraordinary reasons, through notice sent to the supplier by recorded delivery, within the terms of an expedient due date, without the latter being entitled to receive any payment in compensation thereof, on the basis of Article 14, in the case in which:

- b) the supplier should become insolvent, file a petition for bankruptcy or the company has been wound-up or a receiver has been appointed;
- c) there has been a considerable change in the ownership relations in the supplier's company, on the basis of which it is no longer possible to continue the Autotest Supply Agreement; this occurs, in particular, in the case in which one of Autotest's direct competitors has a shareholding of more than twenty-five percent in the supplier's company;
- d) the supplier, or the personnel employed by the supplier, have committed any crimes or administrative infringements, which concern unfair competition or corruption, in relation to the commercial relationship in force with Autotest or the relative purchaser and, in particular, if they have committed financial crimes such as fraud or abuse of power, bankruptcy crimes, cartel right infringements, of all kinds, and corruption, such as subornation, the granting of privileges, payment or acceptance of bribes.

15.2 The supplier shall undertake to continue the Supply Agreement, in the degree requested, as long as the latter has not been terminated.

15.3 The right to termination for extraordinary reasons also exists in addition to any other legal right or which have been foreseen in an agreement, or the right to early terminate the Supply Agreement, completely or partially.

16. The equipment's retention of title – means of production – stock – the purchaser's ownership of the equipment

16.1 All the equipment, means of production and control, which have been placed at the supplier's disposal by Autotest or the final client, must be unequivocally identified, in compliance with Autotest's directives, as clearly and continuously belonging to Autotest or the final client and maintained separate from the supplier's property.

16.2 The supplier shall not be authorised, under any circumstances whatsoever, to use equipment and the means of control and production, which have been provided in favour of the latter by

Furthermore, the supplier shall provide, at his own expense, for the repairs and the preventive maintenance and conservation measures requested with reference to the aforementioned equipment and the means of production and control, and be able to supply proof of the same, on request. The supplier shall undertake any risks for losses or the deterioration of the equipment and the means of production and control, provided, as well as the stock of goods, as long as the goods are under his custody or control.

16.4 The supplier shall undertake to prudently and safely manage the equipment and means of production and control, placed at his disposal, as well as the stock of goods and to hold Autotest harmless, with reference to any claims, liabilities, expenses and damages incurred by the assembly, use, conservation or repair of said equipment and the means of production and control, placed at his disposal or the stock of goods or what is strictly in relation to the same.

16.5 If the equipment and means of production and control, placed at his disposal, or the stock of goods, should not be used, the supplier shall inform the competent Autotest department and ask for the relative instructions. The equipment and means of production and control, placed at his disposal, as well as the stock of goods, may only be disposed off after Autotest's explicit written authorization to do so.
